this book explores the universal human existential trauma of original loss a trauma the author describes as arising from our primal human evolutionary loss of experiencing ourselves as innately belonging to and instinctively at home within the larger natural world in this trauma arose our existential awareness of impermanence and mortality along with the need to mourn that loss in order to create a sense of belonging and identity the book describes how the invention of art and group ritual became the collective ways we mourn our shared existential loss it describes as well how it is the art within the psychoanalytic practice that enables both patient and analyst to grieve their individual versions of our shared original loss drawing on the work of winnicott loewald and ogden as well as art theory and religion this book offers a new perspective on the intersection of metaphorical artistic thinking and psychoanalysis this book will appeal to psychoanalysts psychotherapists and scholars of poetic visual and musical metaphor creativity evolution and history of art an international sensation this startling and heartbreaking debut introduces us to precocious eleven year old djata whose life in the totalitarian state he calls home is about to change forever djata doesn't know what to make of the two men who lead his father away one day nor does he understand why his mother bursts into tears when he brings her tulips on her wedding anniversary he does know that he must learn to fill his father's shoes even though among his friends he is still a boy fighting with neighborhood bullies playing soccer on radioactive grass having inappropriate crushes sneaking into secret screening rooms and shooting at stray cats with his gun happy grandfather but the random brutality of djata's world is tempered by the hilarious absurdity of the situations he finds himself in by his enduring faith in his father's return and by moments of unexpected beauty hope and kindness structured as a series of interconnected stories propelled by the energy of dragomán's riveting prose the chapters of the white king collectively illuminate the joys and humiliations of growing up while painting a multifaceted and unforgettable portrait of life in an oppressive state and its human cost and as in the works of mark haddon david mitchell and marjane satrapi djata's child's eye view lends power and immediacy to his story making us laugh and ache in recognition and reminding us all of our shared humanity
